

RICARDO CHIESA

Attorney-at-law and Certified Translator (University of Buenos Aires), with more than twenty years' experience in legal translation.

Teaches Translation of Economic and Legal Texts in the Post-Graduate Master's Translation Course at Universidad de Belgrano, Buenos Aires.

Former Director of the first Post-Graduate Course in Legal English and Common Law for Civil-Law Lawyers at Universidad Austral, Buenos Aires, and former Professor of Translation IV and Lecturer in English Language III (Anglo-American Law) at the School of Translation Studies, University of Buenos Aires.

Has lectured widely on Legal Translation, General Translation Theory and Practice, and Comparative Law, with more than 100 postgraduate seminars and courses taught in Argentina and abroad. Several papers on Legal Translation presented at conferences held in Argentina, the United States, Finland and England.

Past activities in the legal profession include services as legal advisor to the Board of Discipline of the Buenos Aires Association of Certified Translators and serving as notary public at the Argentine Coastguard Service.

Has a full command of Italian, a decent grasp of written French, and has recently started to explore the intriguing meanders of German.